

Nike's new store, on Morning Lane, opened last month. Employees secured their jobs there through the Council's Ways into Work scheme

TICKING THE BOX

NIKE'S much-anticipated Hackney store launched with a queue of residents excited to see the building which has been under wraps for months.

With whoops, claps, shouts and hollas, Nike's energetic team of staff welcomed their first customers on 26 May. The shop spans three levels and is located on Morning Lane, the home of the 'Hackney Walk' fashion district.

Nike now joins a number of other fashion stores to open in East London's newest fashion centre, developed with money secured by the Council from the Greater London Authority (GLA) after the riots which took place in 2011.

Nike's latest employees include 14 residents who, with help from the Council's Ways into Work scheme – which supports, coaches and matches unemployed residents with employers in the borough – are now working for one of the world's largest and most-recognised brands.

Cllr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for Regeneration, who attended the opening, said: "The purpose of Hackney Walk has always been to create jobs and a host of career, training and learning opportunities for residents across the fashion, design, retail and creative industries.

"With Nike launching in the borough, and hiring staff locally thanks to our Ways into Work service, the Council is helping to set the precedent for other brands – big and small – to ensure they think of Hackney residents first when recruiting."

Nike employee Rhea Johnson, 22, from Victoria Park, said: "It has been an amazing experience, I've met loads of incredible people and I'm looking forward to where this journey is going to take me, especially as I'm studying a strength and conditioning sports course at university.

"Ways into Work gave me loads of support, preparation sessions and coaching for the interview, like what and what not to say, which made me a lot more confident and helped me get the job."

Zara Thompson, 24, from

Well Street, added: "I'm so glad I got the job, and I'm really excited to be given the opportunity to work for the first Nike factory store in Hackney. It's the start of my retail career.

"Ways into Work helped me loads with nice and friendly staff which I'm so glad about. If a person from Hackney is looking for work, it's worthwhile contacting Ways into Work, there are loads of opportunities in the borough, the team are very supportive and it works."

Cabinet will discuss a recommendation that heavy vehicles are prevented from using Middleton Road to make it safer for cyclists in London Fields

London Fields traffic calming measures

A PROPOSAL to close 13 junctions to motor vehicles around London Fields looks set to be shelved following public opposition in the area.

Last October, the Council announced it would trial a restriction zone around London Fields in a bid to end 'rat-running' and improve conditions for pedestrians and cyclists, prior to a public consultation. It was part of the bigger Bloomsbury to Walthamstow TfL Quietway scheme.

After listening to the concerns of residents in the area, the Council decided to hold a consultation without implementing the trial.

Four potential options were put forward to reduce the amount of traffic using the London Fields area.

These included the original proposal to close junctions to through-traffic, which would have meant resident motorists, pedestrians and cyclists would still be able to pass through the closures, but motor vehicles would not.

“Residents have told us the traffic calming option that they would prefer”

Consultation responses showed that although many people living outside the London Fields catchment area (79 per cent) supported the proposal, the majority of those living in the area (67 per cent) opposed the idea.

Some 47 per cent of those living within the catchment area supported putting in a width-restriction gate on Middleton Road. This would mean a reduction in traffic on Middleton Road and remove the largest vehicles, which pose the greatest risk to cyclists. On this basis, a report due to be considered by the Council's Cabinet on 18 July will recommend that this option – width restrictions on Middleton Road – is approved and taken forward as on an experimental basis.

This would allow the Council to measure the impacts of the changes on all roads in the area under real life conditions and help inform any future decisions.

The Council is also looking at the consultation feedback from individual streets to ascertain whether localised, minor traffic calming measures – where resident support was strong – can be implemented to augment the width restriction in Middleton Road.

Traffic flow and pollution levels would be carefully monitored and taken into account when assessing the success of the scheme and, following a review, changes would be made accordingly.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods and Sustainability, said: “We have had a full and informed conversation about traffic management in the London Fields area. We have listened to and answered questions from residents throughout the discussion. Residents have told us the option they would prefer that we test out, so I will be taking a report to Cabinet recommending that this option is taken forward.”

Gypsy Roma
Traveller History
Month 2016

Travel to a new culture

JUNE is Gypsy, Roma, Traveller History Month (GRTHM) and Hackney is celebrating with a series of free events exploring the culture of the largest ethnic minority community in Europe.

There are an estimated 300,000 Gypsies, Roma and Travellers in Britain with a 800-strong community, including 400 children.

Hackney Libraries – together with the Travellers Education Service, London Gypsy and Traveller Unit, Hackney Housing Travellers Service, and Hackney Museum – are set to host entertaining, interactive family events throughout the month that will help explore the history of one of Hackney's oldest communities. These include a lively Irish dance workshop, fun-filled Gypsy sing-a-long and walking tours of Hackney on a treasure hunt.

“Taking part in GRTHM is a great way to celebrate the diversity we are so proud of in Hackney”

Meena Mongan, a member of the Traveller community in Hackney, said: “I love GRTHM – it's the best way of spreading the news about the beauty of our culture and a great way to bring all communities together as one. The events are usually fun and I look forward to going along to the different activities with my family.”

Despite having a history in London spanning the last 500 years, most people know little of the rich culture of the Gypsy, Roma and Traveller communities. Experts believe that ignorance may lead to misunderstanding and discrimination with nine out of 10 UK Gypsy, Traveller or Roma children reporting incidences of racial abuse.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: “Taking part in GRTHM is a great way to celebrate the diversity we are so proud of in Hackney. It gives everyone the chance to not only learn more about the rich history of the Gypsy, Roma and Traveller communities, but to get involved with a living and thriving culture.”

Back Well Street's campaign

WELL Street Traders and Residents Association (WESTRA) is calling on residents and businesses to back its campaign to crowdfund ambitious initiatives to revive this historic market.

The group's ideas were informed by a consultation to determine what people wanted from the market. Alongside a demand for fresh produce at affordable prices, people spoke of wanting a market they felt part of, that also provided opportunities for local people. For more info on the campaign, and how to pledge, visit: www.spacehive.com/well-street-market

New crime role for Cllr Linden

HACKNEY Deputy Mayor, Cllr Sophie Linden, is set to be appointed Deputy Mayor of London for Policing and Crime.

Cllr Linden, who was first elected to the Council in 2006, was nominated for the post by the new Mayor of London, Sadiq Khan. In her role at Hackney, she has responsibility for crime, community safety, environmental health and trading standards, equalities and civic engagement. She will stand down from the Council later this month. Cllr Linden said: “I am delighted and honoured to be nominated by the Mayor of London to join his team, covering a brief I'm passionate about. But I am sad at the thought of stepping down from my role at Hackney Council. It's been a privilege to represent the people of Hackney for the last 10 years.” Following Cllr Linden's formal resignation, there will be a by-election in the Hackney Central ward. Her successor to the role of Deputy Mayor has yet to be announced.

Archaeologists dig into Hackney's past to discover Shakespeare's theatre

ARCHAEOLOGISTS digging into Hackney's history have discovered props that Shakespeare himself might have used.

A bird whistle is among the finds so far uncovered at the site of the Curtain Theatre in Shoreditch, one of the bard's least-documented playhouses.

Archaeologists from the Museum of London Archaeology (MOLA), who are excavating the 16th-century site, believe it may have been used for sound effects during productions of ‘Romeo and Juliet’, since the play contains numerous references to bird song.

The Curtain was home to Shakespeare's theatre company from 1597 to 1599 and historians have long wondered what it looked like. The dig, which began in April, has so far identified its courtyard and inner walls, as well as some personal items.

These will eventually be on display within a new development of homes, shops and restaurants.

Chris Thomas, Director of Heritage Consultancy at MOLA, said: “This is a fantastic site which gives us unique insight into early Shakespearian theatres.” Public tours of the site are taking place every Friday, until 24 June. They are free, but require booking.

To find out more, and to book a tour of the site, visit: www.mola.org.uk/events

The Council launched the first-ever Mayor's Civic Awards on the 10th anniversary of the 'I Love Hackney' civic pride campaign

DID YOU KNOW?

Who: Brenda Sullivan
What for: Retired teacher at Holmleigh Primary School, N16

Profile: Brenda has been a teacher at Holmleigh for over 40 years and recently retired. She still continues to teach at the school however, to promote sports and physical education. Brenda ensures that all the pupils enter school sports competitions and have a chance to become budding athletes, delivering extra training for team members selected to represent Hackney at regional or national events.

She said: "I'm so honoured to win this award, after this term I have done 44 years at the school, but I am still happy there and would like to make it to 50 years."

Who: Thomas Bailie
What for: Drug and alcohol worker at Westminster Drug Project

Profile: Thomas works with some of the most vulnerable and disadvantaged people in the borough. He has been commended by colleagues for his compassion and desire to work hard to empower clients, always going above and beyond his professional duties, creating services and support groups when there previously weren't any, and using his own funds to do so.

Thomas has created a close partnership with the police and probation services, and encourages collaborative working to ensure the best outcomes. This work has helped reduce the number of burglaries taking place in the borough by 500 last year.

On accepting his award, Thomas said: "It has been a privilege to help people overcome their addictions."

Who: Marilyn Douglas-Hamilton
What for: Health volunteer

Profile: Marilyn is a volunteer for the Hackney Volunteer and Befriending Service (HVBS), as well as for City and Hackney Mind, Marie Curie, and the City and Hackney Carers' Centre. Marilyn's way of befriending clients has now become a best practice model for all future volunteers.

A spokesperson for HVBS said: "Marilyn makes people's lives significantly better through her visiting them for just one hour a week."

Civic pride

HACKNEY publicly thanked its unsung heroes in a ceremony which recognised some of the borough's community champions.

Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, presented the first ever Mayor's Civic Awards to six deserving winners at an event in Hackney Town Hall on 25 May.

The awards marked the 10th anniversary of the 'I Love Hackney' civic pride campaign and celebrated some of the fantastic people who work hard to make the borough a great place to live.

Mayor Pipe said: "We know there are amazing people from all walks of life doing extraordinary things in, and for, our borough. It's time they got the recognition and thanks they deserve."

Who: Rachel Klien
What for: Doula

Distance: Rachel is a doula (birth-companion) for members of the Jewish community in Hackney, and has been coordinating a team of 18 voluntary doulas for over 22 years.

The doulas attend and support local mothers before, during and after birth, helping around 80 mums and babies each month. Rachel has led and organised the service which supports many women who often encounter language and cultural barriers to accessing mainstream medical support.

The service has led to a recognised decrease in infant mortality rates, adverse mental health issues for mothers, caesarean sections and birth interventions in that community.

Rachel wanted to commend all of her volunteers who are 'committed to undertaking their labour of love.'

Who: Caroline Gregory
What for: Community champion

Profile: Caroline is a potter, guerrilla gardener and all round community minded person. She has been a trader in Victoria Park village for 38 years, and has helped to keep the area a vibrant and busy place. When shops started shutting due to supermarket competition, Caroline set up a local traders' association and managed to bring back a butcher, fishmonger, baker and greengrocer to the area. As well as being a champion for local traders, she can often be seen doing some guerrilla gardening on the roundabout in Victoria Park, making an attractive centrepiece to the area and earning her the nickname 'lady on the roundabout'.

Wonderful walks

Take a walk on the wild side and discover Hackney's architecture, history and wildlife

PEOPLE often say they love Hackney for its diversity. I love Hackney for its biodiversity," says Cath Prisk, founder of local social enterprise Outdoor People and author of 'Hackney Wild Walks', a series of maps designed to help families get outdoors.

Hackney's green credentials are indeed impressive: 40 per cent of borough land is made up of green areas. It has 24 sites of importance for nature conservation within its bounds and at least 30 protected species within its borders.

"It has so many different sides," continues Cath. Adding: "I love walking through gritty Hackney Wick as much as leafy Springfield Park. New graffiti pops up behind the old world feel of the Geffrye Museum herbal garden, and you can say 'hi' to the sheep and donkeys at Hackney City Farm, or see the explosion of exotic plants in front gardens around Haggerston.

"There's elegant architecture from the 17th century in one street and modernist academies in the next. It's all walkable, explorable and there's always more to discover."

Cath's passion for Hackney's architectural diversity is something she shares with Sean Gubbins, who runs a schedule of history walks in the borough for the Hackney Society.

Sean says: "By walking Hackney's streets you get to feel part of the place, building up a familiarity and concern for our borough. More so, if you get to know the local history: why places bear the names they do, why and how they were built, who lived there, when and why.

"Walking gives you more time to look around and take things in, to see things you had not noticed before ... a different perspective. Hackney is always changing. After a couple of months re-visit a street to find a new use for an old building or, sadly, its demolition and replacement, maybe bearing a name which harks back to centuries past."

It's not just the borough's fantastic wildlife you encounter when taking a stroll, but its history too. So pull on your trainers and take a stroll this summer. You never know what you might discover.

Here are five of the borough's best walks.

Colourful canals to wonderful woodlands

Start: Church Crescent, Well Street Common, E9

Finish: Marshgate Bridge, Homerton Rd, E9

Distance: Approx. 3 km

A GENTLE stroll across Well Street Common takes you into Victoria Park – London's first truly 'public' park – created in response to a petition to Queen Victoria in 1840. The Hertford Union Canal, which you'll hit next, was opened 10 years earlier to connect London's docks with the Midlands. A sunny stroll down its towpath today takes you to the Lee Navigation Canal, dating back even further to 1768.

A final stretch through Wick Woodland brings you back onto Homerton Road and into the present day.

For more info, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/media/5443/Walk-3-Hackney-s-canals-and-southern-borders/pdf/park-walks-31

Hidden gardens and architectural gems

Start: Poole St entrance to Shoreditch Park, N1

Finish: Town Hall Square, Mare St, E8

Distance: Approx. 4.5 km

ONE for architecture buffs. Starting in Shoreditch Park this route weaves through some of the borough's smaller green spaces, like Hoxton Community Garden and St Mary's Garden, revealing views of Hackney's historic buildings along the way. You'll see the former film hub Gainsborough Studios, the fine old buildings of Hoxton Street, stop to chat to the animals at Hackney City Farm and wind up crossing London Fields to finish with a view of the Hackney Empire's famous façade. For more info, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/media/5442/Walk-2-South-Hackney-s-green-and-open-spaces/pdf/park-walks-2

St John-at-Hackney Church to Springfield Park

Start: St John-at-Hackney Churchyard, Narrow Way, E8

Finish: Springfield Park, E5

Distance: Approx. 5 km

START your stroll at St John-at-Hackney Church. When it was built in 1792, it stood in the middle of an open field. Today, you will need to cross the busy Lower Clapton Road before heading north west to find the next oasis of green: Hackney Downs. Then snake east to South Millfields to see Hackney's largest collection of elm trees, one of which is more than 300cm in girth. If you've worked up a hunger (or a thirst), break the journey up at the Princess of Wales pub before following the towpath along the River Lea to Springfield Park. For more info, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/Assets/Documents/park-walks-no5.pdf

Northern parks and nature reserves

Start: Clissold Park, N16

Finish: Springfield Park, E5

Distance: Approx. 5.2 km

CLISSOLD Park, where this walk kicks off, was built in 1790 as the country home for a family named Hoare. You will see the house in which they lived as you walk through the grounds towards Abney Park Cemetery, one of the 'magnificent seven' garden cemeteries built in the second half of the nineteenth century. On to Stoke Newington Common, where the West Hackney Almshouses were built in 1889, and you are on the final stretch to Springfield Park, where you can take in the wonderful views over the flood plains of the River Lea.

hackneypeople

By Harriet Worsley

DID you know that East London has one of the highest concentrations of artists within Europe, but also some of the lowest levels of engagement with art?" The question posed by Hadrian Garrard is one he has dedicated most of his professional life addressing.

The director of non-profit agency Create London, he has just been announced as the winner of the 2016 Genesis Prize. The only prize of its kind, it recognises outstanding mentors of artistic talent. It is worth £25,000 but, true to form, Hadrian has already given it away.

"Create London exists to connect artists with communities," explains Hadrian. When he was working on the refurbishment of the Hackney Empire, he began to be bothered by the fact that an area could be 'full of theatre, artists and galleries', and yet the majority of its population might never benefit from that.

His preoccupation with the issue came to fruition when he was commissioned by the London 2012 Games organising committee to create public art projects in the Olympic and Paralympic host boroughs.

"It's not just about making culture free," explains Hadrian. Adding: "It's about making it accessible, putting it in non-traditional contexts and showing people that it can bring real benefits to the communities in which it happens. It's great for neighbourhoods when artistic communities move in, but only if they interact."

Accordingly, Create doesn't commission art for traditional galleries. In and around East London, it has commissioned over 100 artists to do what might well count as some of the most ambitious projects of their careers: building a cinema under a motorway, for example, or creating a soft play centre for children.

"In 2012, the year after the riots, we persuaded the Savoy Hotel to let the artist Ruth Ewan and more than 200 East London teenagers to stage a take over of the Lancaster Ballroom," laughs Hadrian.

Adding: "That has to be one of the highlights of the last seven years for me. We wanted to allow the young people to see London in

Creative London

Hadrian Garrard, director of non-profit agency Create London, works to connect artists with communities

“It's not just about making culture free, it's about making it accessible, putting it in non-traditional contexts”

Curriculum Vitae: Hadrian Garrard

1974	Born in Canterbury, Kent
1992	Studies at University of London
1999	Moves to Hackney, working as a trumpet player
2004	Works at the Hackney Empire, on the re-opening of the restored theatre
2008	Leads on East London cultural programme for the London 2012 Games and establishes Create London
2016	Wins the Genesis Prize

a different way, and take ownership of parts of it that seemed totally inaccessible to them. Some of them had never been to central London, or even seen the Thames before, so it was a wonderful experience to be part of."

Creating opportunities for East London's young people is a big part of what Hadrian does. In 2012, Create London collaborated with a New Direction to start a project called 'Create Jobs' that organises work placements, mentoring, support and ultimately paid employment for 16 to 24-year-old East Londoners in the creative sectors.

Last year, Create found jobs for over 130 young people in the creative sector and worked with children in more than 25 East London schools. It helped establish Open School East which supports 13 postgraduate art students by giving them free tuition and studio spaces. In exchange, they deliver workshops and events for people living on the De Beauvoir Estate.

"At the moment, we're working with a ceramicist called Aaron Angell, developing a new youth programme," says Hadrian. From his studio in Hoxton, the artist is working with a group of young adults who are learning the science of glazing, and how to set up and run a workshop. Some will end up in paid employment at the studio, others will leave with new professional skills.

"Young people whose families can't afford to give them lots of financial support need other forms of extended support if they are going to break into careers in the arts," he explains.

That's why, having only just received his £25,000 prize from the Genesis Foundation, Hadrian has already invested it in someone else. Accordingly, Sophie Chapman is the first recipient of the Young Curator Award.

"There are grants out there for artists of all kinds, but not to support young curators. We wanted to create a scheme that would support a young curator who had huge potential, but who didn't have other forms of advantage," he says.

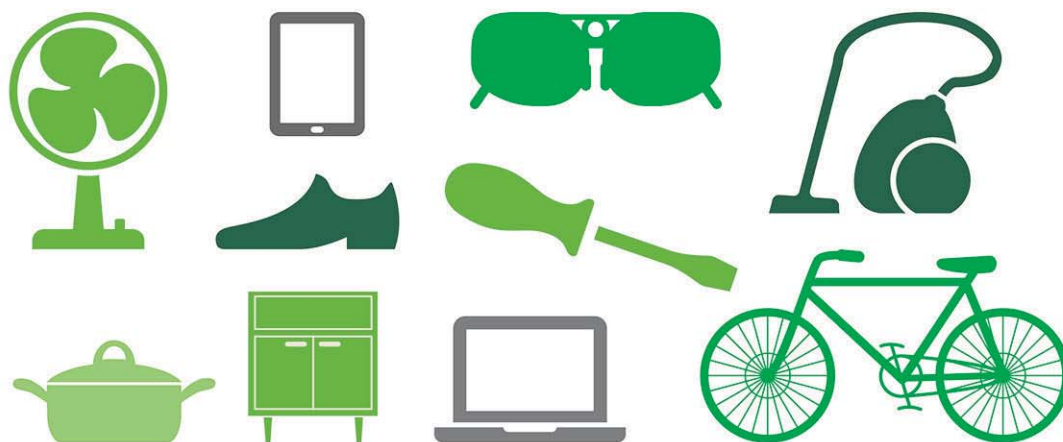

It looks like Hadrian's win is everyone's gain.

Hackney Fixers

Slow laptop? Faulty printer?
Smartphone misbehaving?
Come and learn how to fix your stuff! Whether you love tinkering, hate shopping, or just can't bear throwing stuff away, this is the place to be.

Give or Take Day

Get rid of your unwanted items and pick up something you do need for free. You don't have to give to take and you don't have to take to give. It's like a jumble sale where no money changes hands.

Anyone volunteering or working at one of the Green Flag Award-winning sites – of which there are 19 in Hackney – can be nominated

Thank park staff

THE Green Flag Awards, which recognise the country's best parks and green spaces, is celebrating its 20th anniversary this year.

As part of its birthday celebrations, the scheme has opened a new category to show appreciation for all the parks staff and volunteers who work to achieve Green Flag status.

Last year, Hackney achieved its highest number of Green Flags for 19 of the borough's parks and green spaces.

Millfields Park, in Clapton, and West Hackney Recreation

“ These Green Flags demonstrate the hard work and dedication... of the Council's Parks Service ”

Ground, in Stoke Newington, were the newest recipients of the national benchmark award. This means they are now officially some of the best green spaces in Britain, and join 17 other green spaces in Hackney which kept their Green Flags.

Hackney now has the fourth-highest number of Green Flags in London.

The Council's green-fingered staff are responsible for managing and maintaining a total of 58 sites across the borough, including major green spaces like Hackney Marshes and Clissold Park.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said of the awards last year: “These Green Flags demonstrate the hard work and dedication that the Council's Parks and Green Spaces Service, in partnership with the local community, put into making our borough clean, green, safe and welcoming.”

Anyone volunteering or working at one of the Green Flag award-winning sites can be nominated for the new category. The deadline is 24 June.

News in brief

Get a buzz from rare bees

SOME 50 bee species have been recorded in Hackney over the past four years, with several rare ones discovered in Abney Park Cemetery and Woodberry Wetlands, both in Stoke Newington.

Habitat improvement – through the introduction of new orchards, wild flower planting and reducing how many times the grass is mowed – has been cited as helping increase bee diversity and numbers in the borough. Residents can learn more about the world of bees, and find out what species they can spot in Hackney's 58 parks, gardens and open spaces, at a free talk by Russell Miller in Clissold House, Clissold Park, N16, on 20 June, from 6pm to 8pm.

Walking really is rewarding

PEOPLE earned freebies and discounts by taking part in 'Walking is Rewarding', an event aimed at getting people to become more mobile.

The Council teamed up with 10 cafes and shops across the borough to provide rewards such as a free drink or a piece of fruit on 18 May. One of the businesses who took part was Black Box coffee in Hackney Central.

Ben Murtagh, who runs the coffee shop, said: “We had a super positive response. Despite the dull weather one customer walked all the way from Walthamstow!”

There was a great response from walkers, with some taking to social media to Tweet pictures of their well-earned coffees and Instagram their walks through Hackney's beautiful parks.

Even the rain didn't stop people getting out and about to take part, with one mother tweeting a walking to school haiku poem: “School walk, falling rain, drops on noses, pavement splots, bright macs cheer a grey day.”

Reduce speeding with Community Roadwatch

A NEW scheme has been launched to help local people reduce speeding on residential streets.

Community Roadwatch allows residents to work with local police teams and use detection equipment to deter speeding on their roads.

Research has shown that speed is a contributory factor in road collisions.

As a result, Community Roadwatch is supporting wider police activity, working with communities to make people aware of the dangers of travelling too fast on London's roads.

The new scheme is now looking for volunteers to join the initiative and work with the Safer Transport Police Team in Hackney.

To take part in Community Roadwatch, or suggest a residential area where there are concerns around speeding, e-mail: CommunityRoadwatch@tfl.gov.uk; or visit: www.tfl.gov.uk/CommunityRoadwatch

Field Day

11-12 June, Victoria Park, Grove Road, E3

A FIRM favourite in the festival calendar, Field Day is back as a two-day party bringing together big names in music for an eclectic mix of live acts, at Victoria Park.

Mercury Prize-winner, James Blake headlines on Saturday. Expect to hear new work and old favourites from the Enfield-born, electronic/post dubstep producer.

Other Saturday highlights include a performance by grime master, Skepta, whose track 'Shutdown' has been destroying raves in recent months; plus electronic artist Astronomy, who co-wrote and produced the smash hit 'Never Forget' with Zara Larsson and MNEK.

Field Day will also play host to PJ Harvey's only London show on Sunday. The rock musician takes to the stage to play classics both old and new, including tracks from her latest album 'The Hope Six Demolition Project'.

Oval Space will host the official festival after party, headlined by the legendary DJ Koze on 11 June, till 6am.

ART &
EXHIBITIONS*TATI*Until 12 Jun, 7.30pm

Tati in Bangla means weaver. This exhibition is billed as 'an interwoven conversation' between British fashion and textile practitioners who fuse Bengali artisan woven fabrics, cross-cultural design, and re-interpreted contemporary craft within their work. The exhibition aims to start a dialogue about future partnerships between British designers and the handmade in Bangladesh label. Free. Ages 12+. SHAHIDUL ALAM:
KALPANA'S WARRIORS

Until 18 Jun, various times
Kalpana Chakma campaigned for the rights of indigenous people in the Chittagong Hill Tracts area of Bangladesh. She was abducted from her home at gunpoint 20 years ago by a military officer and two members of the Village Defence Party and has never been seen again. Through this powerful installation, the acclaimed Bangladeshi photographer, artist and activist Shahidul Alam attempts to break the silence surrounding her disappearance. Free. Competition*Win tickets to Stella at Hoxton Hall as part of LIFT Festival '16

AWARD-winning playwright Neil Bartlett OBE stages his first theatre piece in London in over three years at LIFT Festival, and it's sure to be worth the wait.

Stella features just two performers, an empty stage and a haunting real-life story to ask what it might take to truly be yourself.

Alone in a silent room, a man waits for a knock on his door. As the minutes tick by, he remembers a life filled with daring and laughter, with parties and heartbreak, a life spent searching for the courage to truly be himself. The play is inspired by the life and lonely death of Ernest Boulton, one half of the Victorian cross dressing duo, Fanny and Stella. This is a theatrical love-letter to a truly remarkable person.

Roundabout

19-24 July, Hackney Showroom, Amhurst Terrace, E8 2BT

A PORTABLE 138-seat theatre. A host of brand new plays. Three world premieres. The Roundabout season at Hackney Showroom looks set to stir things up. The name itself refers to the circular pop-up theatre space run by the company Paines Plough, who have built a stellar reputation for commissioning and producing new plays. With Roundabout, they take these shows to new audiences around the country starting, this year, with a residency at Hackney Showroom from 19 to 24 July. "There's a play for everyone, everywhere in Programme 2016," say joint Artistic Director, James Grieve, and the programme is certainly diverse. From 'Love, Lies and Taxidermy', a new play about two teenagers from Merthyr Tydfil who fall in love in Tesco, to 'I Got Superpowers For My Birthday', aimed for children aged seven to 11, the red-hot new playwrights are reaching out to audiences of all ages. Catch them before they – very literally – bring the house down and head on to the Edinburgh Festival Fringe... The proposed site for a temporary school, while two new secondaries are being built to help meet the need for more local school places

THE Council is consulting on proposals to use a former depot in Haggerston as a temporary school while it builds two brand new secondaries to help meet the need for more places for local pupils.

The City of London schools group, which already sponsors a successful academy in the borough, has submitted applications to the Department for Education to open two new secondaries.

Decisions are expected in the summer. If approved, it is proposed that the new schools will be built on the site of Britannia Leisure Centre, N1 – alongside a brand new leisure centre – and Benthall Primary School, near Hackney Downs.

Hackney's Local Education Partnership is drawing up plans for these schools, which would be built to the same high standards as the borough's other secondaries, already provided through the Council's Building Schools for the Future programme.

“Using the former parks depot means we can ensure high quality school places while we build the permanent schools”

The temporary site, in Audrey Street, was historically a depot for the Council's parks team, and was also used as accommodation for Bridge Academy in 2007, while its permanent site was built. The high quality temporary buildings will help Hackney meet the need for two more schools by 2021, and provide 2,500 additional places.

The proposals will not affect the nearby BMX track, or the orchard area to the south of the depot. Arrangements have been discussed with existing users of the site to relocate them elsewhere within the park.

The temporary site would initially provide accommodation for the school being built on the Britannia site. It would open in 2017 and move into its permanent site in 2020, at which point pupils starting at the second school would move in, until the Benthall site opens in 2022.

Cllr Anntoinette Bramble, Cabinet Member for Children's Services, said: "This is the latest stage of our exciting and ambitious project to secure the school places we need to ensure we can provide local schools for local children.

"This programme has been ongoing for over a decade and has seen a number of new academies open and existing schools rebuilt, refurbished and expanded. Using the former parks depot means we can ensure high quality school places while we build the permanent schools."

Residents who live near the depot should have received an invitation to find out more about the proposals at a drop-in session on 14 June, from 4pm to 8pm, at Whiston and Goldsmiths Community Hall, Goldsmiths Row, E2 8QY.

There will be further opportunities to feedback on design specifics when a planning application is submitted.

Gain new skills and hobbies at the Adult Learning Festival

HACKNEY is set to celebrate the National Festival of Learning by offering free classes to encourage residents to continue their education long after they leave school. The annual festival promotes lifelong learning and aims to help more adults to take up courses, workshops and classes. These range from learning to belly dance, to trying out a new language, or picking up some practical skills, such as first aid or basic IT.

The festival, which runs from 13 to 17 June, will take place over 10 venues across the borough, including Hackney Museum and Hackney Central Library. With over 50 classes to attend, there is something for everyone. This year's festival will also include taster workshops in everything from social media for beginners, African drumming and money management to creative writing, self-defence and yoga.

For more info, pick up a brochure from a library, or visit: www.learningtrust.co.uk/adultlearningfestival

William Patten Primary School teams up with literary festival

THE Stoke Newington Literary Festival made a successful return to Hackney – taking place in venues across the borough – as well as teaming up with William Patten Primary School.

The school, also in Stoke Newington, held a precursor event on 26 May, which welcomed over 1,300 local children to attend 'Kidfest' a day-long event that allowed youngsters to meet authors such as Trish Cooke, Ciaran Murtagh, SF Said, Ben Bailey Smith and Sav Akyuz. Headteacher Karen Law said: "We are very proud to be part of the literary festival for a seventh year. It is a privilege to be part of such a prestigious event."

A new mural (pictured) was also unveiled in William Patten School playground on 5 June, which features children's poetry inspired by local 'ghostsigns' (faded traces of late Victorian advertising signage painted onto the brickwork of buildings) that feature across the neighbourhood. The artwork appears on a wall in Stoke Newington Church Street, that for over 100 years has been home to painted advertising.

Students from The Urswick School queue up to get £20 credited to their new savings accounts

Get money savvy

SEVERAL Hackney schools have teamed up with the London Community Credit Union to offer young people their own savings account as part of an innovative Council scheme.

Skinner's Academy, N4, The Urswick School, E9, and Chabad Lubavitch School, N16, are already participating in the scheme, in which the Council gives students a £20 balance and new savings account.

The Council teamed up with secondary schools to offer every child in Year 7 a credit union Young Saver Account at the start of the year.

The aim is to encourage responsible financial behaviour, as well as giving students the tools to manage their money into adulthood. The scheme overlaps with the curriculum, with credit union advisers teaching a range of life-long skills from budgeting and saving to handling cash.

“This scheme is about helping our next generation understand the importance of good financial management”

Cllr Anntoinette Bramble, Cabinet Member for Children's Services, said: “This scheme is about helping our next generation understand the importance of good financial management and giving them a little helping hand so they can become smart and savvy savers.

“Many young people have never used banks, or have not had the experience of managing money, which can make financial decisions in later life difficult. This ranges from not putting money into a safe and secure account, to using extortionate payday loans instead of those at a reasonable rate.”

Abdul Abdallah, 12, who attends The Urswick School, said: “Opening up a savings account is giving me a great start in life and will help me to save for my future. I just want to save more for my education as I would like to go to university or, one day, afford my own property.

“I think that all young people like me should think about opening a savings account instead of spending the money they have. They should just save it instead to spend on their future.”

Eniola Adediji, 11, who also attends The Urswick School, added: “This is a really smart initiative, it's letting us save money for the future, and whenever I receive birthday or pocket money now I can put it straight into my account, instead of hiding it around the house. I'm just going to start saving now and spend on my education later on.”

Some residents don't have a bank account and the Council is aware that some residents are turning to payday loans and, in some cases, loan sharks to pay their rent, purchase household items or to buy new school uniforms for their children.

Through the Young Savers Account, and other schemes, the Council hopes to help residents better understand the true cost of borrowing, and where they can go to get debt advice.

Going MMADD for youth arts

A NEW festival created to showcase the fantastic quality of work in the arts in schools across the borough, is set to be launched this month.

Taking place in venues across Hackney from 27 June to 16 July, MMADD festival is an umbrella for some long standing events, such as the Hackney Music Festival and the Hackney Schools Art Show.

It will also encompass a new media, dance and drama festival with elements of film, fashion, spoken word and poetry. Highlights include music at The Round Chapel, an art show at Space Gallery, and a film festival at Hackney Picturehouse.

The aim of the festival is to celebrate the work of students, encouraging a cross-discipline exploration that will mix performance, paintings, music and media. For more info, including dates, times and locations of events, visit: www.learningtrust.co.uk/MMADD

New youth leadership scheme

A SOCIAL justice charity launched a new programme for young people in the borough at Hackney Community College.

Voyage (Voice Of Youth And Genuine Empowerment) launched the South Hackney Leadership Academy (SHLA) on 28 May in response to incidents of youth violence in the area.

The scheme, aimed at under 18s, hopes to help young people progress, increase their civic engagement and encourage them to make good life choices.

Dr Everett Penn, from America, attended the launch to share insights into a similar scheme in Texas and will assist the project in exploring the development of an international youth exchange programme in 2017.

The academy will start off with one session per month, working towards boosting the confidence of young people by creating opportunities to become involved in a range of local and international projects, as well as engaging with the creative arts.

Green and pleasant land

By Sally England

OPEN Garden Squares Weekend returns to Hackney on 18 to 19 June, when some of the borough's hidden green spaces will open their gates to the public.

Many of the gardens have a long history of being cultivated and carefully looked after, but others are relative newcomers on the scene, having been used for different purposes during their history. This article takes a look at the stories of just a few of the gardens that will be on display over the weekend.

The Geffrye Museum originally served as the almshouses of the Ironmongers' Company, founded by Sir Robert Geffrye in his will of 1703, to shelter his elderly former employees. The almoners moved out in the early 1900s, but uncertainty over the fate of the almshouses provoked a struggle that lasted over 20 years to save them from destruction.

Preservation groups fought the proposed redevelopment of the site, arguing alongside residents, that the old tree-lined lawns in front of the almshouses were a rare piece of green open space in Shoreditch, which at that time had no parks. London County Council (LCC) came to the rescue, buying the site in 1910 to preserve the grounds as an open space for public recreation, with the gardens opening two years later. The original front lawns have now been complemented by the addition of a herb garden to the side of the building and period gardens to the rear.

The gardens at St Joseph's Hospice in Mare Street have existed for over a century, providing a beautiful, calm space for relaxation and contemplation by both residents and visitors. Part of the hospice, Cambridge Lodge Villas, was built in 1856 by local developer Marmaduke Matthews and, from 1865 to 1868, was the home of William and Catherine Booth, founders of the Salvation Army.

The Cambridge Lodge estate was put up for sale in 1903. Five Irish Catholic nuns wanted to buy the estate to use for their charitable work amongst the poorest of Hackney's residents, but didn't have enough money, and the estate was sold for £10,000 to an anonymous buyer in December of that year.

But just three months later the buyer donated the estate to the Sisters for use as a hospice for the dying, which opened in 1905. In 1936, the neighbouring Cambridge Heath Congregational Church on Mare Street was demolished enabling the hospice to expand. The garden was an important feature from the outset, and has gone on to win a veritable bouquet of awards including a medal at the Chelsea Flower Show in its centenary year of 2005.

The old pumping station in Green Lanes was built for the New River Company in the 1850s in an area that was at the time mainly fields. It looks like a Scottish baronial castle, a design chosen to help disguise the industrial building, which the few locals living nearby felt would be an ugly eyesore. Over the years additional outbuildings were added to the site, and all the time the surrounding fields were gradually disappearing under new roads and houses.

By the early 1970s, the pumping station was redundant and earmarked for demolition but, unlike its original neighbours, residents flew to the defence of 'their castle' which was given listed building status in 1974 as a result, although it took another 20 years before it was finally decided what to do with it.

The Castle Climbing Centre opened in 1995, and since 2009 the exterior of the site has been landscaped and an impressive organic garden has been developed, which grows food for the cafe, provides a habitat for wildlife and a place to relax.

Dalston's Eastern Curve garden provides a peaceful oasis from the noise and traffic of busy Dalston Lane. It was developed on the site of the old Eastern Curve line of the North London Railway extension that opened in 1865. It formed a triangular junction, the two curves meeting at the original Dalston Junction station before running south to Broad Street station. The Eastern Curve line was closed in 1944, the tracks removed in 1965 and the site remained derelict.

The garden was developed as a much-needed green space in 2010 as part of a project to improve local public spaces. Some of the plants that had taken root on the old line, such as buddleia and bracken, have been retained alongside newly planted trees and shrubs that are good for wildlife, while Dalston locals grow vegetables and herbs in the large raised beds.

All of the Hackney gardens taking part in Open Garden Squares Weekend have their own fascinating stories to tell – as well as being beautiful – so hopefully the sun will shine and people can get out and discover the hidden gems on their doorsteps.

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections took place in May 2014.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see. Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

MAYOR JULES PIPE

Hackney has an executive Mayor, Jules Pipe, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough. The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney who is elected annually from among the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Sade Etti.

Ribollita

THIS Tuscan white bean, cabbage and bread soup – from a chef at the E5 Bakehouse – is best made the day before you eat it. If you are using dried cannellini beans then you'll need to soak them two days before you want the soup.

Ingredients

- large onion
- carrot
- stick of celery
- two cloves of garlic
- tsp of tomato purée
- bay leaf
- finely chopped sage or rosemary
- sprig of thyme
- salt & pepper
- half a tin of good-quality chopped tomatoes
- tin of (or preferably home-cooked) cannellini beans (about 80g if dried)
- finely shredded savoy cabbage (the crinkly, dark one: the darker the leaves, the tastier)
- stale bread
- parmesan
- olive oil.

Method

- Gently fry the onion, carrot, celery and garlic (all finely chopped) in olive oil until golden, soft and delicious-smelling
- Now add the tomato purée, a bay leaf, sprig of thyme, some sage or rosemary, salt and pepper, plus the tomatoes (discard most of the juice first). If you have any saved parmesan skin, throw in a piece. It adds beautifully to the flavour
- Let this mixture simmer for 10 minutes or more and add the cannellini beans and then the savoy cabbage. Once the cabbage is cooked, add a thick slice of stale bread, ripped into pieces. Add water if necessary, though this is a thick stewy soup. Taste, season and serve, adding a generous grating of parmesan and good olive oil to each bowl.

The E5 Bakehouse is an East London artisan bakery and coffee shop. Using organic, locally-sourced ingredients, they serve delicious, daily-baked breads, fresh lunches, homemade cakes and coffee. Their head bakers also share their knowledge and expertise in a weekly bread course.

Have your say on Hackney's flood risk management strategy

RESIDENTS are being asked to have their say on Hackney's flood risk management strategy.

It outlines how the Council – as the lead local flood authority for Hackney – aims to manage flood risk in the area and encourage communities, businesses and the public sector to work together to ensure that everyone has a clear understanding of the risks of both flooding and erosion.

The strategy includes a summary of local flood risk, the roles and responsibilities of partners involved in managing that risk, objectives and measures for managing flood risk, funding sources and implementation of objectives.

To have your say on the local flood risk management strategy, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/floods; or e-mail: floodsandsuds@hackney.gov.uk

hackney.gov.uk

If you would like more information about the consultation, contact Derek Drew-Smith on: 020 8356 4111. The consultation closes on 7 August.

LONDON BOROUGH OF HACKNEY REPORT OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT OMBUDSMAN

The Local Government Ombudsman has issued a report following her investigation of a complaint against London Borough of Hackney. The complaint was about a Planning & Development matter.

The Ombudsman deemed that there had been fault on the part of the Council, and this had in their opinion caused injustice to the complainant.

London Borough of Hackney had already taken action which the Ombudsman regards as providing a satisfactory remedy for the complaint.

The Council has responded to the Ombudsman report by providing an update of how it has addressed the complaint and rectified the unauthorised development.

Copies of the report will be available for public inspection during normal office hours at the Hackney Service Centre for three weeks starting on 6 June. Anyone is entitled to take copies of the report or extracts from it. Copies will be supplied at a reasonable charge. 143B Upper Clapton Road Hackney London E5 9DB External wall insulation and render finish to rear and flank elevations at first floor level. 2016/1654 Affects the Setting of a Conservation Area
